FOR RELEASE ON RECEIPT

The Cleveland Museum of Art is offering more than a dozen courses for young people this summer.

Designed to stimulate appreciation and understanding of art through seeing and doing, the classes range from a workshop on art which uses wind and motion, called "Airborn Art," to a study of animals which appear in art from various cultures and periods, called "Fur, Fin, and Feathers."

All courses are open to children of Museum members and non-members. They are arranged according to age level, from pre-school to high school.

Registration currently is under way during regular Museum hours, and will continue throughout the month of June.

To register children for classes, a parent or guardian should come to the Museum. Children need not be present at registration.

There is a fee of $5.00 per class for Museum members, and $10.00 per class for non-members, to be paid at the time of registration.

In the case of financial need, scholarships to cover class fees are available. For information on scholarships, contact James A. Birch in the Department of Art History and Education (421-7340) before registration.
